The Church of the Immaculate Conception Epping

TWENTY-EIGHTH SUNDAY OF THE YEAR 11th October 2015

Dear friends,

at this time of year many of our young people have just begun studies either at universities or other places of tertiary education and those at school are well into the autumn term. We encourage them all to work hard to qualify for life but in the final analysis what is all study about? It is not enough to show how clever people are: all study should lead us to wisdom of heart and wisdom is the theme of our readings today. The psalm opens with these words: make us know the shortness of our life that we may gain wisdom of heart. Our span on Earth is indeed short and wisdom is needed to use life to the full and not fritter it away in pursuit of dead ends. As believers we are called to cultivate wisdom by attentiveness to the word of God. Reflecting on that word we gain purpose and direction. The scriptures certainly tell us that there is much more to life than the acquisition of wealth and worldly trappings. At the final judgement we shall not be asked how clever we were in building up a property portfolio but we shall be asked how wise were we in making sacrifices for others and trying to serve the common good.

We offer warm congratulations to Mr Geoffrey Hooper for his 90th birthday in a few days time. Geoffrey, a devout Anglican, has been playing the organ for us, both on Saturday evenings and on Sundays, for many years and we thank him both for his dedication and his talent.

God bless you always
Fr James
